somnambulism-The Phenomenon of

A London physician, in the intervals of active professional life, has employed himself with writing a series of essays upon matters that relate to the Brain, Nerve and Mind. The opening paper treats of those qualities in chli-dren which are derived as a "Natural Heritage" from their progenitors, which is followed by an inquiry into "Degenerations in Man." From the chapter on Somnambulism we take the following curious examples:

by an inquiry into "Degenerations in Man."

From the chapter on Somnambulism we take the following curious examples:

Two very instructive cases are quoted by Dr. Pritchard from Muratori. The first relates to a young Italian noble, Signor Augustin, who was accustomed to walk and perform a variety of acts in his sleep. The attacks were usually announced by a peculiar manner of sleeping on his back, with wide-open, staring, unmoved eyes. Vigneui Marville, an eye witness, gives the following account of one occasion: "About midnight Signor Augustin drew aside the bedelothes with violence, aroso and put on his clothes. I went up to him and put the light under his eyes; he took no notice of it, although his eyes were open and staring."

After performing a variety of movements about the house, and seeking for many things, appearing occasionally to hear nolses that were made, and to be frightened by them, "he went into the stable, led out his horse, mounted it, and galloped to the house door, at which he knocked several times. Having taken back his horse he heard a noise which the servants made in the kitchen and wont to the door, holding his ear to the key-hole, and appeared to listen attentively." He afterwards went to the billlard room, and enacted the motions of a player. He then went to the harpsichord and played a few thregular cirs. "After having moved about for two hours he wont to his room, and threw himself upon the bed, clothed as he was, and the next morning we found him in the same state; for, as ofton as his attack came on, he slept afterwards from eight to ten hours. The servants declared that they could only put an end to his parately watched by two physicians, Righellin and Pagatti. He was a servant, and had walked in his sleep from his cleventh year. He would often repeat in his sleep the accastomed duties of the day, and would carry trays and glasses about and spread the table for dinner with great accuracy, though his eyes were always firmly oissed. Indeed, it was apparent that he could not see, as substitution.

In other cases the senses are more awake, and the intelligence more active. Castell, whose case is related by Francisco Soave, was found one night asteep in the act of transisting from Italian into French, and looking out the words from a dictionary. When his candle was extinguished he arose and went to seek another light. When any one conversed with him on any subject on which his mind was bent at the time he gave rational answers; but he seemed to hear nothing that was said to him or near him on other subjects. His eyes him on any subject on which his mind was bent at the time he gave rational answers; but he seemed to hear nothing that was said to him or near him on other subjects. His eyes also seemed to be only sensible to those objects about which he was immediately en gaged, and were quite fixed; so much so that in reading he turned the whole head from side to side instead of the eyes.

One of the most remarkable cases on record is related by the Archbishop of Bordeaux in the "Encyclopeid Methodique." It was concerning a young priest at the Catholic Seminary, who used to rise in his sleep and write sormons. Having written a page he would read it aloud and make corrections. "I have seen," says the Archbishop, "the beginning of one of his sormons which he had written whon asleep; it was well composed, but one correction surprised me. Having written at first the words "co divin enfant," he had afterwards effaced the word divin, and written over it adorable. Then perceiving that ce could not stand before the last word, he had deverously inserted a 4, so as to make the word cet. He continued to write, although a card was held between his eyes and the paper. Did the history stop here we should have a well-authenticated case of vision without the ald of the eyes. But the collateral circumstances show that this writing was accomplished not by sight, but by a most accurate mental representation of the object to be attained, as will be further illustrated in our next case. Por after he had written a page requiring correction, a plece of blank paper of the exact size was substituted for his own manuscript, and on that he made the corrections in the precise situation which they would have occupied on the original page. A very astonishing part of this reports is that which relates to his writing music in his sleeping state, which, it is said, he did with perfect precision. He asked for Finally, he knew nothing of all that had transpired when he awoke; but in his next paroxysm he remembered all accurately, and so lived a sort of double

MYSTERIES OF NEW YORK.

The Ways of the Gothamite Bachelors.

The mysteries of a large city are strange and startling. The New York correspondent of the Rochester Democrat, referring to mysterious matters occuring occasionally in the city, calls up the following interesting reminiscences:

One most striking instance was found a few years ago in the history of George Schuyler, who was of the firm of R. & G. Schuyler, who were the heaviest railroad operators of the day. They failed. Previous to which they have depleted the fact that the failure of course was found a few years ago in the history of george a bachelor of over fifty, and family living up town. His children were grown up, and went by the name of Spicer—that being the name borne by their father while he was in his own domeste derice. Some time after that, another bachelor, Daniel Argerine by mame, delt, leaving a landsome were about to claim it, when the claim. The testimony went to show that the claim. The testimony went to show that the man known in New York as Daniel Angevine had for years passed in Williamsburg by the name of Smith, and the claims of Mrs. Smith were sustained by the courts. I know not how they are sustained by the courts. I know not how they are sustained by the courts. The course had for years passed in Williamsburg by the name of Smith, and the claims of Mrs. Smith were sustained by the courts. The course had for years passed in Williamsburg by the name of Smith, and the claims of Mrs. Smith were sustained by the courts. The course had for years passed in Williamsburg by the name of Smith, and the claims of Mrs. Smith were sustained by the courts. The course had for years passed in Williamsburg by the name form, an enterprising and successful brainess man, and an honest and estimable member of the great community of trade. Every morphing to appeared at his store at 7 robed, and over 10 page 10 The mysteries of a large city are strange and startling. The New York correspondent of the Rochester Democrat, referring to mysterious appearance of the place, advised him to seek another boarding-house. Little did they dream that this was his own establishment. A few weeks ago he sent to this city for a physician, whom he had known fifteen years, to make him a professional visit. The messenger had a rude one-horse wagon, and in this the doctor was conveyed to a shabby and dilapidated house in the suburbs of Brookiyn, where he found P— stek-abed and rapidity sinking. His disease was acute and reached a hopeless stage. A woman of rather degraded appearance and several children entered the room, P— astonished the physician by the announcement that they were his wife and off-spring. He died next day, and his friends met at the funeral this strange and most unexpected family. Here was a very startling denouement. Who, indeed, knew him as the lively bachelor, mingling in the best of society in this city, could have dreamed that he had a vulgar, ill-bred wife and family of niserabte children hidden away from his friends; and yet this is but a small specimen of the mysteries and miseries of New York.

PILES OF GOLD.

Counting the "Yellow Boys."

The transfer of the Sub-Treasury at New ger has necessitated the counting of the gold in the vaults. The reporters thus got a glimpse gold therein, and describe them as follows:

gold therein, and describe them as follows:

The vaults of the Sub-Treasury are two in number, and situated on the main floor of the building. The sides and roof of each are eight feet of granite masonry and two feet of fron plates. Between the plates are musket balls laid in loose. The floor is thirty feet of masonry and two feet of fron plates. Between also with a layer of musket balls. Each vault is closed by four fron doors weighing two tons each, and fustened by two combination locks to each other. The three inner doors are locked without a key, while the locks on the outer ones are operated by means of an instrument about an inch long by half an inch wide, which may be carried in a vest pocket. Each vault is about twelve feet square. On the sides want in about twelve feet square. On the sides of each apartment are built one hundred and twenty chests of iron, each of the capacity of a quarter of a million in gold coin. Each chest when full is closed by an iron door, and fustened with a lock which is sealed so that the door cannot be tampored with without breaking the seal. At present there are about $75,000,000 in gold coin and about $40,000 in

of the day's business.

Many people are under the impression that each piece of coin is counted separately in these examinations, but a little reflection will convince them that this is an error. One man could scarcely count $100,000 on an average in a day, and to examine at this rate would consume. sume too much time, nor we be necessary. Each denomination is packed separately, and the belled with a tag, showing the ter of the coin and the amount. In cess of counting one of the sealed children and the control the county to the county be opened, the contents carried on trucks into the gold-room, and then one bag will be counted, and the remainder of the same decontact, and the remainder of the same de-nomination weighed against it in accurately adjusted scales. Should any perceptible dif-ference in weight be noted the contents of the deficient bag will be counted, and thus any error will be guarded against. Should noth-ing occur to prevent, the examination will pro-gress at the rate of $10,000,000 per day.

Russell's soothing cordial FOR INFANTS TEETHING.

RUSSELL'S SOOTHING CORDIAL is offered to he public with an absolute guarantee against all langer from its use. Read the following certif-ates:

Charleston, May 16, 1868.

Mr. J. B. Russell, one of our careful and intelligent Pharmaceutists and Apothecaries, has submitted to my examination the formula for the preparation of a Soothing Cordial prepared and vended by him.

E. GEDDINGS, M. D.

Having had occasion to preacthe Reserta's Southing Cordial in severe cases of Hewel Complaints in children and delicate females, I have been much pleased with its effects. I consider it a valuable medicine in all cases—v, which it may be advisable to avoid the use of $\infty$—ne, and particularly for family use, as it is projectly safe.

W. T. WRAGG, M. D.

CHARLESTON, S. C., 1809.

Dear Sir—I have used your Soothing Cordini for Diarrheea in teething children, and find it a very excellent preparation. It has a great advantage over most preparations of the kind in containing no Opium or Narcotte.

When these are required they can be added in proportions applicable to the case.

I therefore can recommend its use in the affections for which it is designed.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

T. L. OGIER, M. D. CHARLESTON, S. C., 1869.

I certify that I have I certify that I have most successfully used Russkil.'s Soothing Corollal in the Summer Complaints of infants. He has fully exhibited the ingredients of his remedy, and the teddious method of preparation. I recognize the prescription—containing no anodyne whatever—as a most safe and efficacions one in bowel affections of children. When much pain or restlessness attends the affection, doses of Paregoric can be added to the prescribed doses of the Cordial according to the age of the patient. The compound, though more often, acts in an efficient manner without any addition of anodyne.

In the Diarrhea of the aged, in increased doses, it is of great value as a remedy; never disagreeing with the stomach—increasing appetite, improving digestion, and acting as a slow but efficient astringent agent.

W. M. FITCH, M. D.

MOUNT PLEASANT, S. C., 1868.

LVr. J. B. Russel!:

DEAR SIM—I have used your Soothing Cordial for children extensively in my practice, and most che, viruly testify to its merits. I have found it, with, uit an exception, to accomplish all it chaims, and c. vasider it superior to anything in use for children.

and c. ansider it superior to anything in use for children.

Its free adom from anodyne of any kind recommends it as a perfectly safe preparation in the hands of L. tothers and inexperienced nurses.

Yery respectfully, &c.,

WHAT MED LOLDER

WHAT MEDICINES YOU TAKE.

When you are exhausted by overwork of head or hand, and feel the need of something invigorating, don't drink Whiskey or any intexicating thing, whether under the name of litters or otherwise. Such articles give just as much strength to your weary body and limited as the white gives to the jaded horse, and no more. Alcoholic stimulants are injurious to nerve health, and are always followed by depreasing reaction.

DODD'S NERVINE AND INVIGORATOR

Is a Tonic and gentle stimulant, which is not attended by reaction. What it gains for you it maintains. When it refreshes body or mind, it refershes with natural strength that comes to stay. We are not recommending tectotalism in the interest of any faction; but long and extended observation teaches us that he who resorts to the bottle for rest or recuperation, will find, as he keeps at it, that he is kindling a fire in his hones which will consume like the dames of perdition. Turn from it. Take a tonic that will refresh and not desiroy. DODDYS NERVINE is for sale by all Druggists. Price One dollar. See book of certificates that accompanies each bottle.
